Enrollment incomplete for quarter

By Ingrid Tarver
Staff Writer

Fall quarter registration figures are incomplete at this time and reliable estimations are impossible, according to Robert A. McGrath, registrar.

Last fall quarter, 21,576 students were enrolled.

"We expect to have more students than we had this time a year ago," McGrath said.

He said no figures will be released from his office for at least two weeks, when all new and continuing students have been registered.

Graduate enrollment figures will not be available until the first week in October, said William D. Randall, assistant to the dean of Graduate Studies and Research.

Graduate registration does not end until Oct. 2. Randall said the graduate Office had more requests for admission this year than last year, but so far, the number registered was "running behind."

Registration hours at the Graduate Studies Office are from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday.

Registration and program changes for undergraduates will take place today and Thursday from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. at the Arena. Registration hours Friday, the last official registration day, will be from 8 a.m. to 12 noon, according to Henry Andrews, supervisor of registration.

He said students desiring program changes must have a printed class schedule or a white copy of the course request form. A two dollar fee is charged if the change is not for the convenience of the University, he said.

Friday is the last day a student can register for a class or add a class to his schedule.

Andrews explained the program change procedure: If a student wants to change a course or drop one, he must first see his advisor. If the student only desires a section change for one of his courses, he does not have to see his advisor. He is instructed to pick up a program change form in the south lobby of the Arena, list the section he is dropping and the section he desires to add.

Students who registered in advance and did not receive a printed schedule may pick up a copy in the south lobby of the Arena. Those students with registration and schedule problems may settle them in the same area of the building.

After Friday, the registration center will move back to Woody Hall.

For SIU freshmen unfamiliar with the system, numbers became a taxing and repetitious monotony during registration and sectioning. GSA this, GSB that, GSC something else were all part of the orientation for this puzzled freshman coed during Saturday's sectioning. (Photo by Nelson Brooks)

Carbondale police begin special training sessions

By Wayne Markham
Staff Writer

Carbondale police had their first training session on how to deal with minority groups Tuesday night, a development stemming in part from charges of police brutality leveled against two patrolmen by three black residents of the city's northeast side.

A verbal report on future sessions being planned was made Tuesday night to the Carbondale City Council by City Manager C. William Norman.

Norman said the two-hour sessions, held from 3-5 and from 8-10 p.m. Tuesday, were conducted by Richard M. Thomas, an associate professor in SIU's Community Development Service.

According to the report by Norman, plans for a six-week program for all city policemen are underway and will include weekly two-hour lectures and discussion programs.

Demands for the special training were sparked by an incident that began with a fight involving black and white youths at the Carbondale Teen Center Sept. 6.

Six persons were arrested by police, who were accused by blacks of using excessive force. One of the arrested youths was white.

About 200 residents of the city's northeast side marched to the police station the following night and later presented a list of demands which included the firing of the police involved and the establishment of special training sessions.

The two patrolmen, L. W. Patterson and Jerry Reno, were suspended for up to 30 days pending a hearing on their actions which will be held Monday.

A hearing on charges against the youths has been scheduled in city circuit court Sept. 30.

Security police allowing time to purchase parking stickers

No date has been set for the enforcement of parking stickers, according to Thomas L. Leffler, SIU chief security officer.

Leffler said he wants students and faculty to have enough time to purchase stickers. He said the Parking Section Office will notify him when most of the applicants have stickers.

The student and staff parking fees were increased this fall and student automobile restrictions were loosened in an action taken this summer.

Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar announced that starting this term, all students over 21 and all juniors, seniors, veterans and married students will be allowed to have motor vehicles at SIU.

In the past, car privileges for undergraduates have been limited to juniors and seniors with specified grade point averages, as well as to commuters, 25-year-olds, married students and other special groups.

Parking sticker prices were raised across the board, in line with a gradual program of fee increases approved last year by the Board of Trustees.

Decals for preferred "blue" lots in central campus locations were raised from $45 per year to $65.

Red stickers—good in lots outside the inner campus loop—went from $25 to $35. Silver decals for peripheral lots are $15, an increase of $10.

A new $5 yellow "registration only" sticker has been added this quarter.

Other changes in parking and vehicle registrations are:

—The "50-mile radius" student car registration zone has been squeezed to Carbondale, DeSoto, Makanda, Murphysboro and Cartersville Townships. Any student vehicle owned or operated in that area has to be registered. Faculty and staff must register cars if driven on campus.

—All "limited use" authorizations were eliminated. These had to do largely with students needing cars in their jobs, with use restricted to job activity.

—The top penalty for an eligible student's failure to register a car has gone from $10 to $25.

—Enforcement has been tightened. MacVicar said a group of "meter maids" will supplement parking lot checks by security patrolmen.

—Green motorcycle decals were eliminated. Certain portions of selected lots are marked for cycles.

—New parking decals are not issued to anyone with an outstanding parking debt or violation, until such obligations are satisfied.

—"Budget plan" installment payments on 1969-70 parking stickers are $25-$20 monthly, for blues, starting in October, and $15-$10-$10 for reds.

—Penalties for parking in any campus lot without the appropriate decal are $5 for the first offense, $10 for the second and $15 plus possible revocation for subsequent offenses.

—A faculty-staff student appeals panel will be established to hear parking complaints referred by the Parking Section and forward policy recommendations based on the nature of appeals cases.

—Blue decal sales have been held at the same number as last year (about 1,600), and priority is given first to fulltime faculty and staff, then to current holders of blue stickers.

—Parking lots adjacent to the library have enforced decal parking from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. instead of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The increases follow last year's new fee policy which was established in order to build up a substantial parking revenue account, according to MacVicar. This enables SIU to participate in a matching fund program for new parking construction over two biennial periods starting in 1971.

The Parking Section Office, located in Washington Square, is open 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday.

Kenney running strong in race for Con-Con post

David T. Kenney, SIU government professor, drew top support in Jackson County over eight contenders for his bid in Tuesday's Constitutional Convention primary.

Kenney, also a director of public affairs research at SIU, is seeking a seat from the 56th senatorial district. The district covers seven counties including Jackson and eight townships in St. Clair County.

Delmar Wood, Jackson County circuit clerk, said Kenney had 320 votes over his nearest rival. The official Jackson County returns gave Kenney 1,903 votes; Ralph Dunn, Du Quoin, 1,583; Earl S. Hendricks Jr., Murphysboro, 817; and Robert W. Holloway, Sparta, 598.

Unofficial returns from the seven counties not including St. Clair show Dunn with 6,451 votes, Kenney with 5,597 votes, Holloway with 3,064 votes and Dean R. Hammack, Pinckneyville, with 3,028 votes.

The four top candidates of Tuesday's vote will enter a Nov. 18 election to decide the two district delegates.

Bus service resumes today; green route to be expanded

By Ingrid Tarver
Staff Writer

The red and blue routes of the Saluki bus service will begin running today on the same routes as in the past, but the green route has been expanded to increase service in the northwest section of Carbondale.

The green bus will proceed north on Illinois Avenue to the intersection of the north-south couple, then south on University Avenue turning west on Sycamore.

It will make stops at University and Sycamore, Sycamore and Carico and Sycamore and Almond. It will then turn south on Springer and stop at Springer and Pecan, turn east on Oak and stop at Oak and Poplar and proceed south on Poplar.

University students, faculty and employees may ride the bus for 10 cents upon presentation of SIU identification. The buses will make pickups at designated stops only, and will discharge riders at any safe corner on the route.

All Saluki buses will make their last daily run from the University Center at 9:05 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 5:05 p.m. Friday and at 12:05 p.m. Saturday.

Saluki bus schedules can be picked up at the University Center Information Desk, Student Activities Office, Grinnell Hall, Trueblood Hall, Lentz Hall, Small Group Housing Office, Southern Hills, Evergreen Terrace and the Auxiliary Enterprises Office at Park Place South. The Intercampus Bus, which runs from the Carbondale campus to VTI, began running Tuesday.

The last bus leaving VTI for Carbondale will be at 1 a.m. Monday through Friday and Sunday and at 2 a.m. Saturday.

The last bus leaving Carbondale for VTI will be at 2:30 a.m. Monday through Sat-

Registrar handling withdrawals

Beginning this quarter, students wishing to withdraw from school should go to the Office of the Registrar instead of the Office of Counseling and Testing at Washington Square.

The change should be more convenient for students because refund authorizations are processed in the same office.

Thomas appointed head of admissions

Ronald E. Thomas of Wood River has been appointed assistant to the Director of Admissions, in charge of international student registrations, at SIU. Nearly 130 new international students will be registered at SIU by the beginning of the fall quarter.

Thomas received a Bachelor's Degree in Education from Northeast Missouri State at Kirksville in 1965, and a Master of Science Degree in Counselor Education from SIU's Edwardsville Campus in 1967.

Graduate students will continue to withdraw at the Graduate Office and VTI students may withdraw at the Area Dean's Office if they desire. Mail requests to withdraw should be addressed to Dean of Students' Office, Washington Square.

Students are reminded that Oct. 6 is the last day to withdraw from school and still be eligible for a refund of tuition and fees.

Draft reform plan praised as good

At last something is being done about the draft laws in this nation. President Nixon has labeled draft reform legislation with an urgent priority and has vowed to change the status of those who will be drafted whether Congress acts or not.

Nixon's proposals call for only 19-year-olds to be drafted. Make it to your 20th birthday and you can't be drafted unless a national emergency arises. Your name will go into a hat. If it is pulled, you get drafted. If it does not, you will not be.

Nixon has also stated that if Congress does not act, he will issue an executive order reducing the number of years in which a person can be drafted.

About the only thing not called for in Nixon's draft reform is the replacement of Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the director of selective service. He has been the No. 1 foe of any draft reform and regards the system of selective service his personal property.

Should a new system of drafting young men for military duty go into effect, a new director would also be in order. After all, why put someone who thinks the poor system is good in charge of the better system. We may end up right back where we started from.

Public Forum

The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters. Editorials are written by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the author only. Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters, which must be signed with name, address and telephone number preferably typewritten, and no longer than 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and are urged to make their points in terms of issues rather than personalities. Acceptance for publication will depend upon the limitations of space and the timeliness and relevance of the material. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. # Priceless experience

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is really an expression of appreciation from a thankful mother to those persons responsible for and connected with the special type of Summer School program in the Herrin Unit District.

We have watched our 10-year-old twins blossom and grow in various ways because of this unique school. With their main problems in the classroom having been inattention and failure to follow instructions, one can imagine what a thrill it is to witness a transformation. To see them enthused and excited not only about going to Summer School, but actually interested in what they learned, and eager to relate each day's happenings.

The group of students and their supervisors involved in the planning and teaching have stimulated the minds and imaginations of our children to the extent that it may make a lasting impression on them and hopefully set a new trend for their intellectual growth. Somehow these young teachers in training have managed to combine learning with pure fun and the results, from my point of view is unbelievable.

Even though there was no tuition involved, I would have been more than willing to pay an enrollment fee, because money could not buy the mind broadening opportunity the Herrin Summer School has provided for the Hale girls, nor afford the priceless experience of a proud parent just beginning to glimpse for the first time the true potential of her children.

An editor's viewpoint

Roar of football fans greets imitation of war

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

In the thud of bodies and the grandstand roar the greatest athletic game ever invented—American football—begins its second century.

It is not the world's most popular field game. Soccer is. For from Jamaica to Singapore all soccer requires is a couple of goal posts and one round ball. It is not the fastest-growing game. Basketball is sweeping the world. For Basketball, invented 78 years ago at the Springfield, Mass., YMCA, is an indoor, all-weather sport that requires only small squads.

But American football is the finest combination of strength and skill for the same reason that chess is the greatest table game. Both have achieved that essence of gamemanship, the stylized warfare in which defense and offense are most perfectly balanced by the rules.

This balance was a long time coming. It was achieved by years of experimentation and dispute. But that is its fascination. Every time defense or offense began to dominate, a rule change was invented to redress the balance. And the rules are still changing.

The first American intercollegiate "football" game between Rutgers and Princeton on Nov. 6, 1869, was still pretty much soccer. But when Harvard got interested in 1873, it wanted to grab the ball and run with it in the Rugby manner. It found no takers.

Finally, in 1874, Harvard scheduled a game in Cambridge with McGill of Montreal under a Canadian version of Rugby rules to which each side was to bring 13 players. Only 11 McGill players showed up and spies from Yale were impressed that that was the right number. But it was 1879 before the Eastern teams agreed on the 11-man team and reduced the field length from 140 yards to 110.

The scoring was all wrong. A kicked goal was worth four touchdowns, although touchdowns were harder. Not until 1912 did the six-point touchdown arrive and the field shrink to 100 yards.

At first the offense had it all. It could hog the ball for an entire half, whether or not it got anywhere with it. In 1884 Walter Camp of Yale solved this by a rule that took the ball away from any team that didn't advance it five yards or lose 10 in three plays.

Defense, then, was king for no offensive player could take part in a play if he were ahead of the ball. Defensive tacklers had a field day and scoring nearly stopped while fans howled.

Then in 1884, Princeton and Lehigh discovered simultaneously that the kickoff rule didn't say how far the ball had to be kicked. So, after the kicker merely touched the ball with his foot, all the linemen converged in a running V and the bone-crushing "flying wedge" was born. Offense was king again, but after 12 years of shattered tibias and fibulas, the wedge was outlawed in a national uproar.

So, defense ruled once more and offense settled down to "three yards and a cloud of dust." The game was getting boring. In 1912, however, shackles were taken off the forward pass. Only Notre Dame grasped its possibilities. On the electric afternoon of Nov. 1, 1913, Gus Dorais completed 13 of 17 passes, most of them to Knute Rockne, and mighty Army fell 35-13. The modern game—a magnificent balance of lunge and parry—was born.

There were giants in the past. Walter Camp was on the rules committee for nearly a half century. Akonzo Staggs, the game's inventive genius, coached for 70 years and died at 102. In the five days between Nov. 9 and 14, 1899, the Sewanee team traveled around in a day coach and beat Texas,

Texas A&M, Tulane, LSU and Mississippi.

There was that first 12 minutes of the Illinois-Michigan game of 1924, when Red Grange made touchdown runs of 95, 67, 56 and 44 yards. And Notre Dame's "Four Horsemen" and Bud Wilkinson's 47-game winning streak. And Georgia Tech's 27, Cumberland O.

Gradually the pros arose, starting back in 1895 when one John Brallier accepted $10 to quarterback a scratch team in Latrobe, Pa. For a long time pros were regarded as not very nice imitators of clean college men, and they represented towns like Canton, Massillon, Muncie and, of course, Green Bay.

Today, pro football is to college ball about what college ball is to high school ball. And a nation hangs on the instant replay. But, even with pro competition, college football attendance goes up nearly a million a year.

Only America plays American football. Even the Canadians have gone for 12 men, three downs and the rouge. But where else is there a game like this, so bewildering to the uninitiated, so satisfying to the aficionado? Where, in a balance of deception, option, grinding stalemate and breakout victory, has man's most ancient sport—war—been so perfectly imitated?

Death of Old Main

Old Main burning

Flames light SIU's sombre Old Main on the morning of June 8 as firemen from Carbondale and surrounding communities fought to save the structure. The fire, which state fire marshalls termed arson, destroyed the structure.

After the fire

Student footsteps will no longer echo on the stairs of Old Main. Only a pile of rubble remains of the building which was almost 100 years old when it was destroyed. Future plans for the site are still undecided. (Photos by Jeff Lightburn)

Legacy of fire: unsolved crime

By Marty Francis
Staff Writer

On a quiet Sunday last June, a young man in the SIU Security Office received a call shortly after 8 a.m. "Old Main was burning."

Despite the efforts of firemen from surrounding communities, the brick and limestone structure, first built in 1870, was almost completely destroyed.

The Department of History suffered major losses in the fire. According to Ping-Chia Kuo, chairman of the department, a major part of the department's books and the bulk of the history instructors' offices were lost in the blaze.

The Department of English teaching assistants' offices also were destroyed and relocated in temporary barracks.

The SIU Museum, another casualty in the Old Main fire, suffered minimal damages due to the fact that prior to the fire collections in the museum had been moved to various locations in preparation for remodeling the facilities.

On Monday, June 9, Joseph Patton, state fire marshal, arrived in Carbondale and along with five deputy state fire marshalls and special arson investigators, began the probe as to the cause of the blaze.

Evidence of four separate fires was found and the custodian who reported the blaze discovered dried mops covered with paint and rags strewn throughout the attic area.

An announcement that arson was the cause was made on June 11, after a meeting between University administrators, SIU Security Police, Carbondale fire and police officials and investigators for the state fire marshal.

That same day, speaking at the graduation exercises in the arena, President Delyte W. Morris announced a $10,000 reward that was offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set the fire.

The arson investigation has continued daily since the fire on June 8. A special number was designated for informants who wish to call about information on the arsonists.

In the latter part of June it was revealed that investigators were searching for a witness who purportedly photographed someone running from Old Main shortly before it was consumed by fire.

SIU Security Chief, Captain Carl Kirk said rumors of such a photograph had cropped up persistently throughout the first three weeks of the investigation.

The search has extended into various parts of Illinois and other states as investigators run down tips and rumors.

Kirk said Monday there have been no new developments in the search but authorities are still investigating all leads.

The most immediate problem resulting from the destruction of Old Main was a lack of classroom space.

The fire destroyed 24 classrooms, most of which were scheduled for class time during the summer. Eight-two reassignments had to be made for final exam week, and in order to accommodate the 10,685 summer school students, classes were moved to Thompson Point, the Agriculture Building and auditoriums in Morris Library and Wham Education Building.

On June 19 the Illinois Senate passed a bill which provided for funds to replace classroom space lost in the Old Main fire.

The bill, introduced by Sen. John G. Gilbert, R-Carbondale, called for the construction of a general classroom building at the cost of an estimated $4.99 million. The same bill was approved by the Illinois House in late June.

In July the Board of Trustees officially approved an addition to the planned Humanities Building Complex for classroom space to replace the losses in Old Main.

President Delyte W. Morris told the Board of Trustees that the extension of the plans was "the most sensible thing to do," and that such an extension would be the quickest way to recoup the fire losses.

According to Charles Pulley, SIU architect, bids will begin in the spring of 1970, and construction of the Humanities complex will begin in the summer of that year.

In early July it was learned that due to the predicted 13.6% increase in enrollment for fall, University officials were exploring the possibility of pre-fab buildings to replace lost classroom space.

Bids for the "instant classrooms" were accepted in early August and the SIU Board of Trustees awarded a contract to the R. H. & S. Steel Company of DuQuoin for the new structures which are located east of the Illinois Central railroad tracks on Washington Street and at Grand and Hester Streets.

The new structures consist of two buildings with 23 classrooms and office space that will accommodate 112 persons.

Meanwhile, the remains of Old Main still stand and the question of what will be done with it is unanswered.

During the summer President Delyte W. Morris suggested the possibility of making the site a memorial plaza using some of the salvaged stones and columns from the original building.

Other suggestions have included building a smaller replica of the structure or constructing an Old Main museum on the site.

According to Charles Pulley, University architect, "officials are still in the process of considering various possibilities but no solution has been made." Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar is in the process of selecting people to serve on a committee to study several solutions.

Text service to help handicapped

Physically handicapped students will no longer have to spend hours in line waiting to get books from the SIU Textbook Rental Service, according to Heinie Stroman, manager of the service.

Stroman said physically handicapped students may bring their library cards and class schedules to the textbook rental office and pick their books up later at the circulation desk in Morris Library.

He said this new policy was initiated this quarter to help these students "as much as we can."

All other students must present their class schedules, library cards and fee statements, in person, upon book rental request.

The Textbook Rental Service will be open today and Thursday from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m., 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. and from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

It will be open Friday from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 12 noon.

Hours Monday will be from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m., 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday is the last day of this quarter that night hours will be observed.

Beginning Tuesday, the Textbook service will be open daily, Monday through Friday from 7:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. throughout the quarter.

Instant classrooms ready to replace Old Main losses

The first wing of an instant classroom project to replace classrooms lost in the Old Main fire at SIU June 8, is ready for occupancy.

The temporary 20-classroom building is located on Washington Street between Pearl and Park Streets, and will house English, humanities, speech and foreign language classes.

It will be known as Building 0720.

The instant classroom building is 240 by 80 feet and made of prefabricated steel, according to John Loneragan, associate University architect.

Another wing of the complex will house faculty offices. It is scheduled for completion Oct. 19.

The buildings are being leased by SIU under a three-year contract.

Nine classes originally scheduled for emergency spaces will be shifted to 0720 after their first meetings. This change will be made because the building was completed about a month ahead of schedule.

Below is a list of classes originally scheduled for Old Main. These classes have been rescheduled for buildings and emergency space classrooms. A list of subsequent meeting places follows some of the classes. This list applies only to classes that will be moved after their first meeting to Building 0720, the new instant classroom complex.

2 fraternities, 2 sororities recognized in SIU expansion

By Darrell Abern
Staff Writer

Four new social fraternal groups have gained recognition in the first steps toward Greek expansion at SIU, according to Kenneth E. Varcoe, assistant dean of fraternities and sororities.

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Delta Sigma Epsilon Fraternity, and Sigma Tau Gamma Interest Group Fraternity were accepted as associate members of the Inter-Greek Council after filing petitions with the Expansion Committee. Each group met the requirements for membership as stated in the "Inter-Greek Council Standards and Expansion Guidelines," which was adopted last March, Varcoe said.

According to the guidelines, the associate member organizations may petition for full membership after at least one full academic quarter of associate membership. The groups have two years in order to meet the requirements of full membership or else they would lose associate membership recognition.

With the exception of Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity, the groups are nonresidential in status. This classification is for groups not operating a chapter house on campus.

According to the guidelines, groups are not allowed to use an off-campus house or headquarters.

Two groups that previously operated houses on Greet Row, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority and Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, have changed their status to nonresidential. Each group felt its membership was not large enough to operate a house, Varcoe said.

The vacated houses, 109 and 111 Small Group Housing, were offered to all four of the associate member groups. Sigma Tau Gamma was the only group to accept a house, Varcoe said. The Sig Taus are operating 111 Small Group Housing, and 109 Small Group Housing, now Salter Hall, is being used as an independent women's residence hall.

The new changes bring the total at SIU to 11 fraternities and seven sororities. Another membership petition for Omega Psi Phi Fraternity is before the Expansion Committee.

All-black series premieres

The first all black television dramatic series, "On Being Black," will premiere at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 3 on WSIU-TV, Channel 8, Carbondale, and WUSI-TV, Channel 16, Olney.

The 10-week series of hour-long color shows will feature some of the top names in show business. Among the stars are Leon Bibb, a veteran actor of TV and Hollywood; Abbey Lincoln, who starred with Sidney Poitier in the movie "For Love of Ivy"; Al Freeman Jr., who was Poitier's co-star in "The Lost Man"; comedienne Moms Mabley of radio and record fame; and Cicely Tyson, whose Hollywood screen credits include "The Heart is a Lonely Hunter."

Producer of "On Being Black" is Luther James whose production credits at CBS have included the "Andy Griffith Show," "Lassie," "Hogan's Heroes," "Mission Impossible," and "The Lucy Show."

The opening show of the series, entitled "Wine in the Wilderness," stars Abbey Lincoln. It tells the story of a young couple from widely different backgrounds who are drawn together by a riot.

The series, produced by educational station WGBH-TV in Boston for National Educational Television, attempts to illuminate the experience of how it feels to be black in white America.

Communications Building room numbers changed

Room numbers in the Communications Building have been changed from three to four digits because of the expansion of the building, according to Stephen Foster, supervisor of scheduling and time tables.

Students who have printed schedules may note that if they have classes meeting in the building, only three digits are printed on the schedule. This is because the processing machines have not been programmed to print the four digits number, Foster explained.

All classes scheduled for the Communications Building will meet on the first floor, except those listed on schedules for 012 and 005, Foster said. These classrooms have been designated 2012 and 2005, both on the second floor of the building. Rooms 1012 and 1005 are offices on the first floor.

Foster also cautions students with classes in Pulliam Hall to watch for signs that will point to classroom areas in the building.

Board of Trustees approves appointment, campus budget

By Terry Peters
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees approved the appointment of Dr. Richard H. Moy as dean of SIU's new School of Medicine at its meeting September 19 on the Edwardsville campus.

Also approved at the monthly meeting was the internal operating budget for both campuses for fiscal year 1970. No changes were made in the budget as presented to the Board, although Dr. Martin Van Brown, Board member and Carbondale physician, objected to allocations for Free School, student government salaries, and the new student government radio station.

Moy, director of the student out-patient clinic at Billings Hospital of the University of Chicago Medical School, is an associate professor of medicine in the school's Division of Biological Sciences. The new medical degree program is designed to produce 50 physicians a year beginning with the first anticipated graduating class in 1976.

When the operating budget of $105,740,425 for the next fiscal year was brought up for consideration, Brown said he opposed paying salaries to student government personnel.

"This is excessive," Brown said of the salaries paid the three student government executive officers and two administrative assistants.

"If we need to spend this kind of money, we don't have the right kind of administrators. Either we don't need to pay the students or we don't need to pay the administrators," Brown said.

Dwight Campbell, student body president, said the salaries were justified on the grounds that they permit students who would otherwise have to get a job to participate in student government at the executive level.

Also cited as a justification for the salaries was the recent amendment to the student government constitution requiring all executive officers and both administrative assistants to remain in school year-round, thus preventing executive personnel from working in the summer to finance their schooling.

Brown objected to both Free School and the new Student Government Radio Station, saying neither were legitimate expenses.

Tom Bevirt, student government administrative assistant, defended the new radio station. He told Brown the station would be heard primarily on campus, and that the station had been proposed by responsible students interested in the communications field.

In answer to a question from a Board member, Carbondale Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar said the radio station would be supervised by members of the administration, but that it would not be censored.

The discussion following Brown's objections centered on the quality of student government and the proper use of student activity fees.

"I think student government stinks," Brown said at one point.

"Maybe the reason for bad student government is that boards and officials won't listen to what they have to say," replied Melvin C. Lockard, Board secretary.

When Brown remarked later in the discussion on student activity fees that "there is no such thing as student money," Bob Bauman, student senator for commuters, disagreed.

"I think the crisis on campuses this year will be whether or not students will have control over the money they pay for their education," Bauman said.

Both MacVicar and Edwardsville Chancellor John S. Rendleman defended the expenditures for student government authorized by the proposed budget. When Brown moved to approve the operating budget with the exception of the allocations for student government salaries, Free School and the Student Government Radio Station, no one seconded the motion.

The budget was then approved as submitted.

In other business, the Board approved a bachelor's degree program in international agriculture for SIU, "to be offered by the School of Agriculture, effective as soon as possible during the 1969-70 academic year."

The Board approved the Moy, who grew up in Naperville, will be in charge of the state's newest medical degree program, which is designed to provide 50 physicians a year beginning with the first anticipated graduating class in 1976.

Clinical training and internship facilities will be located at an SIU medical center in Springfield, within Springfield Memorial and St. John's hospitals, selected Moy for the new position.

A product of the University of Chicago, where he received his M.D. in 1957, Moy has had both clinical and teaching responsibilities there since being named a resident in internal medicine in 1960. He was appointed director of University Health Services in 1964.

Waiting, waiting, waiting

An S-shape curve of students in line for books extended from the door of the Textbook Rental Service around the back of the Life Science Building to Thompson Woods Monday and Tuesday. Heinie Stroman, manager of the textbook service said the extremely long line was the result of New Student Week Leaders trying to move their groups through the service in one day. New student days usually fall on Monday and Tuesday of the fall quarter with classes beginning on Wednesday evening, but this year, Monday was the only full day for new students with classes beginning on Tuesday Evening.

Orville Alexander to assist Con-Con group

By Mike Freshill

Before he can start on another world tour, he has to finish some work for the governor of Illinois.

Completing his 19th year as chairman of the Department of Government at SIU, Orville Alexander is stepping down and taking a year of leave. But before he goes there's that job for the governor.

Early this year Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie asked Alexander to assist the Illinois Constitutional Research Group in making recommendations for the forthcoming Constitutional Convention. Currently, Alexander is writing a report on the educational section of the Illinois Constitution.

This part of the constitution is good the way it is, he says. "The only thing that needs to be done to the education section is to rephrase it in more general terms, because it has to be flexible for change."

Alexander's research will be combined with information compiled by other scholars in Illinois and printed in one volume which will be given to the governor and the Constitutional Convention.

After completing his report, Alexander plans to travel in Europe and eventually go around the world.

In 1962 he took five months off and made his first world trip. When he travels, he likes to lay out the journey himself, letting the travel agent only buy the tickets.

Meeting former students is what Alexander finds to be the most enjoyable part of world travel. He will make a point of stopping in a foreign country if he knows a former student who is working there.

On his last world tour Alexander stopped off to see a former student who was then Cambodia's deputy minister of defense. "By contacting students I've taught, who are now high officials in other countries or working at a United States Embassy, I get a different point of view than the average tourist. They explain and show me things about the country that are far more interesting than what a tourist guide would say," Alexander said.

During the fall the Alexanders will sail to London and then travel around western Europe by auto. While in London he plans to make arrangements for a journey through Africa.

Alexander will spend some time in Hamburg, Germany. He has taught SIU government students at the University of Hamburg for six of the last ten summers.

In February the Alexanders intend to join Hellmut A. Hartwig and his wife and head out for Africa. Hartwig is chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages at SIU, and is presently working in Germany.

Machakos, a small village 100 miles outside Nairobi, Kenya, will be their first stop in Africa. They plan to visit the Hartwigs' son, Charles, who is administrator of a hospital there. Charles received his B.S. in government at SIU.

"After we've gone that far into Africa we may as well go the rest of the way," Alexander continued. They will cross the continent and stop off in the Union of South Africa to visit some friends.

From Africa they intend to fly to Australia and then on to Southeast Asia. While in that part of the world they plan to travel through Indonesia, take a brief look at Saigon, and visit the defense minister of Cambodia.

After Southeast Asia they hope to have enough time left to spend about a month in Japan.

Their final stop will be Hawaii. Alexander has been in every state except this one in the Pacific Ocean.

When Alexander joined the SIU faculty in 1938 he became the second member of the newly created Government Department.

He prefers to teach justice courses but has no favorite classes. Being chairman he has to schedule instructors for courses and doesn't really have much choice in what he teaches. Usually the classes he teaches are ones he can't find another instructor for.

In the fall of 1970 Alexander will resume teaching. No longer having the responsibilities of chairman, he hopes to devote more time to writing and reading.

SIU, four area schools form athletic conference

some conjecture that this would be a step backward for Southern's advancing athletic program.

Donald Boydston, director of athletics, said he thinks most of SIU's coaches and athletics committee members were concerned about "whether or not the other administrations involved would feel the same way as we did about a balance program. We have, of course, stressed all sports equally and I think this was one of the real concerns of our people."

But Boydston cited Northern Illinois as "real tough" and termed Indiana State "out-standing" in football. He added that "We'd have our hands full" trying to win a conference championship in the current school year if one were to be awarded.

As for further evidence of the athletic caliber of some sports in the new conference, Illinois State won the College Division of the NCAA last year in baseball.

Boydston said Southern will continue to get tougher in all sports.

"We're not going to stand still," he said. "We're still shooting for national championships on the university level in every sport. What everybody should realize is that we built this present program on a work-scholarship program."

"This present year, 69-70, is the first time we've had 220 NCAA scholarships to recruit with. So we're going to do even better, in my opinion. We're going to get tougher in things like wrestling and swimming."

One area where SIU will be hurting is facilities. According to Boydston, the athletic facilities at all four of the other institutions are superior to the Salukis'.

Northern Illinois, Illinois State and Ball State all possess new football and track stadiums while Indiana State will shortly begin a major expansion of its present facility. As an added factor, three of the conference schools have an artificial playing surface which Boydston thinks is a "tremendous edge in recruitment." Each also has a fieldhouse for off season or bad weather workouts.

"Our track team, which competes during the indoor track season, must often prepare by running in the snow or on muddy ground while our competition prepares by practicing on a portable track in a fieldhouse," Boydston said.

"In early season preparation, our baseball team has often worked out in the snow on the asphalt surface at the side of the Arena. Our swimming facilities (which seat only 230) are located in the University School and are inadequate for all the demands on that facility, and our hopes for a golf course are in the future."

From a purely athletic standpoint, Boydston said he isn't completely sold on the idea of joining a conference. But when all factors are considered, he said, he realizes that this could be a "step in the right direction" for the University.

"The Big Ten is known primarily for its dominance in athletics but what few people realize is the added 'clout' the schools have as a group," he said. With this extra

"clout," Boydston said, it will be much easier for Southern, along with the other conference schools, to obtain research grants.

But he still feels that "for the present, independent status wasn't the worst possible thing."

Boydston appoints four new assistant coaches

New assistant coaches in four sports were appointed last week by Donald Boydston, head of intercollegiate athletics at Southern.

Harry Gurley, 29, and an outstanding pitcher for the Salukis from 1960-63, will assist new head coach Richard "Itchy" Jones with the SIU baseball program. A starting pitcher for four years, Gurley compiled a 20-9 career record at Southern.

For the past five years, he has been a high school baseball coach in St. Louis County. He has also been active in the American Legion program and his teams have won the Missouri State American Legion Baseball championship for the last two years.

Robert Ledbetter, 35, joins the coaching staff of Dick Towers after a successful football coaching career on the high school level in Memphis, Tenn. As athletic director and head football coach at Hamilton High in Memphis, his teams were consistent winners. He has also worked as a director in the Memphis City Recreation Department.

Paul Henry, another former Saluki star, will serve under Jack Hartman, head basketball coach. As the second leading scorer on the 1962 and '63 Saluki teams, Henry had played for Hartman at Coffeyville Junior College when the team compiled a 32-0 record and won the national junior college crown. He was named the tournament's most valuable player and followed Hartman to SIU.

H. J. Biesterfeldt Jr., an associate professor of mathematics, will serve as assistant gymnastics coach under Bill Meade.

Biesterfeldt was a side-horse specialist at Penn State during 1956-57 and was an assistant there until 1963. After coming to the SIU mathematics department last year, he served in an unofficial capacity with the team.

In making the announcement, Boydston stated that Biesterfeldt would continue as an associate professor of mathematics.

SIU joins athletic conference after seven-year independence

By Mike Klein
Staff Writer

For the first time since SIU's withdrawal from the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in 1962, the Salukis will have a conference affiliation.

SIU, Northern Illinois, Illinois State, Ball State and Indiana State, made the joint announcement at a press conference Monday in the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel.

All intercollegiate sports, except football, will have league champions in the 1970-71 school year in the unnamed conference. The first football crown will be awarded in the 1974 season.

As early as last May, Chancellor Robert MacVicar said, "With a growing program of intercollegiate athletics, the difficulties incident to operating as an independent are clearly becoming more serious, especially the scheduling of an adequate program in football."

But even though SIU was reportedly "close" many times over recent months to linking in with the new conference, it was only recently that the Board of Trustees gave its approval.

The formation of the new conference should give Southern the opportunity to win championships in many sports, but there has been

Salukis may face test of spirit

By Jim Sumner
Staff Writer

The football Salukis' biggest problem preparing for Saturday's game at Youngstown is one of attitude, not personnel, according to football Coach Dick Towers.

Towers said the team has the ability to beat Youngstown, but will have to be "up" for the game to do so.

After Saturday's game, in which the Salukis dropped a 17-13 decision to the University of Louisville for their season's opener, the team appeared to be discouraged, Towers said.

The Salukis played a winning game on paper but lost the game on the scoreboard as they racked up three more first downs, four more yards rushing, 77 more yards passing and averaged 13 more yards per punt than the Cardinals.

In analyzing the game, Towers said the team worked hard. "I believe I can attribute the loss to three factors," Towers said.

"First, I really made some poor decisions. As you know, we didn't attempt any field goals. Second, we wanted to win so bad we had the first-game jitters and then this led to the fact that we missed assignments and were just not playing heads-up ball."

Towers said Louisville had no better personnel than the Salukis. He was pleased with what he called SIU's "consistent offense" and said their kicking game was good. Barclay Allen punted five times for an average 46.4 yards.

"I was also very pleased with our No. 2 defense unit," he added. "They looked real good. As a matter of fact,

I'm going to start referring to them as our 'alternate unit.'"

The unit was headed by Greg Johnson and Brian Newland. Allen entered the game with a hip injury which was re-injured when he scored SIU's first touchdown in the first quarter. But he managed to gain 54 yards on six carries.

Sophomore Bob Hasberry looked impressive in his first varsity game as he gained 100 yards in 25 carries.

SIU offers courses on the Asian cultures

SIU offers both graduate and undergraduate courses on Asian cultures and contemporary affairs, according to the Asian Studies Committee.

The philosophy of the Asian studies program is to encourage intelligent awareness of Asia among educated persons who are not Asian specialists and to encourage teaching about Asia in schools and colleges which do not maintain special area programs, said Joel Maring, committee chairman.

The courses cover areas of instruction in agricultural development, anthropology, art and art history, economics, education, languages, governments, history, and philosophy in Asia.

An undergraduate student at SIU may choose Asian studies as a major, or may strengthen his disciplinary major by taking an Asian Studies minor, Maring said. Graduate students in a number of depart-

The conference on "The Role of the University in the Quest for Peace" was held at the University of Vienna and included educators from all over the world.

Morris told conferees that SIU has, through its international student and foreign study programs and its active missions overseas, attempted to "develop a world outlook in a traditionally isolationist part of the United States."

While abroad, Morris visited Ansembourg Castle in Luxembourg, site of a foreign study program involving students from SIU and six other schools.

SIU has contracted with Vita International Association for a three year series of offerings at the Luxembourg center. Thirty-seven SIU students made the original trip last month, starting a semester of study.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris also toured Norway, Denmark and Sweden and visited universities in Copenhagen, Oslo, Bergen, Aalborg and Stockholm. While in Stockholm they were guests of Gunnar Boalt, Swedish sociologist who has been visiting professor at SIU during the past two years and now is an adjunct professor.

WSIU news exec criticizes Viet coverage as sensational

Fragmented reporting of news on television for reasons of sensationalism has given Americans a distorted image of the Vietnam War, according to Richard B. Hildreth, associate director of the SIU radio network and assistant operations manager of WSIU.

In an interview recently, Hildreth, a veteran of 20 years in news broadcasting, said 60 per cent of Americans get their news from television. He said fierce competition in the business leads to sensationalizing.

"News is a commodity—you're trying to sell something," he said. "If somebody gets a bloody picture, the next guy goes out and tries to get a bloodier one. If a man stands up in front of a camera and tries to explain why something happened, it's just not as interesting to most people as seeing a picture of some fellow getting his head blown off.

"You can't take a picture of an idea. It's the things you can take pictures of that become the news of the day."

"Our confusion about Vietnam is because we are not informed," he said. "The stories are all about the shooting matches but nothing behind the scenes."

Hildreth said many significant facets of the Vietnam struggle are being ignored by television newsmen because the facets are not sensational.

Hildreth said the answer to news distortion lies in educational broadcasting.

"It is the educational broadcasters' obligation to give the background of the news, to make the news about current events comprehensive, not fragmented," he said.

Two visiting professors expand '69-70 faculty

Two visiting professors will bring their specialized knowledge to SIU during the 1969-70 school year. Their appointments were approved Friday by the University's Board of Trustees.

SIU was a pioneer in bringing distinguished educators, many of them retired from their parent institutions, to the campus for periods of up to a year to conduct faculty and graduate student seminars.

Miss Florence Davis, from Illinois State University, will serve during the winter and spring quarters as visiting professor of child and family in the School of Home Economics.

John W.D. Wright, retired vice president of finance for the International Harvester Co., Chicago, will serve during the fall quarter at the Carbondale campus as visiting professor in the faculty of finance.

In other personnel action the board employed Burton Bond, Jr., of Chicago, to serve as assistant to the dean of Technical and Adult Education. He has been employed by M.J. Holleran, Inc., of Chicago.

John E. Laybourn, formerly associate director of the Asia Training Center at the University of Hawaii, was named associate dean of the International Services Division.

Changes in assignment for faculty and staff included James M. Brown, executive dean of academic affairs at the Edwardsville campus, to serve as special assistant to the president; Royce R. Bryant to serve as acting dean of the School of Home Economics pending appointment of a successor to Dean Eileen Quigley, retired; and A.B. Mifflin, coordinator of University Graphics, also to serve as acting head of Central Publications succeeding Earl E. Parkhill, resigned.

Hibbs announces schedule

Lillian Gish, William Warfield to appear at fall convocations

Actress Lillian Gish and actor-singer William Warfield will be among the headliners at the free University Convocations fall quarter, according to Paul Hibbs, coordinator of Special Programs.

Convocations, open to the public, are held at 1 p.m. each Thursday in the Arena.

Miss Gish first appeared in motion pictures in 1914. Later films included "Portrait of Jennie," "The Cobweb," and "The Unforgiven." She has appeared on the stage since 1930. Among the plays are "All the Way Home," "The Family Reunion," and "Miss Mabel."

Warfield has appeared on Broadway and has toured Australia, Europe, and Africa as a concert singer and in musicals.

He toured Europe in 1952 as Porgy in "Porgy and Bess." He was in the movie, "Showboat," in 1951, and starred as De Lawd in "Green Pastures" on NBC-TV in 1961.

The fall quarter schedule: Sept. 25, Ian and Mitchell, jazz-rock mass singers;

Oct. 2, Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar; Oct. 9, University of Wisconsin Singers; Oct. 16, William Warfield; Oct. 23, The Zaras, Spanish musical entertainers; Oct. 30, Metropolitan Opera Studio Ensemble, young opera singers;

Nov. 6, Harold Hayes, editor of Esquire magazine; Nov. 13, John Sack, novelist and war correspondent; Nov. 20, Lillian Gish;

Dec. 4, Leon Volkov, Presidential adviser, ex-Russian air force colonel; Dec. 11, Holiday Assembly.

Hibbs said students and others are invited to attend the free coffee hours ordinarily arranged for visiting performers by the Student Activities Office. They start about 2:15 p.m. in the River Rooms of University Center following the presentations.

Services held for SIU's Smith

A memorial service was held in Edwardsville Sept. 7 for SIU professor of education, Herbert F. A. Smith, who died Aug. 30 in Kathmandu, Nepal, where he was a member of an SIU contract team.

Smith, who died after a short illness, had served nearly two years in the Kathmandu education development program, funded by the federal Agency for International Development. He first came to SIU at Carbondale in 1957 and moved to the Edwardsville campus in 1964. He went to Nepal in October, 1967.

The memorial service was in St. John's United Methodist Church, Edwardsville, with the Rev. James L. Nettleton of Mt. Vernon, a former pastor of the church, in charge. Burial was at Edwardsville Sept. 6. The family stated that those who desire may contribute memorials to the SIU Foundation, with checks made to the Dr. Herbert F. A. Smith Memorial Fund.

Organizations vie for films

By Mark J. Wolfson

The house lights dim, the crowd milling ceases and the show begins.

The scene is Furr Auditorium, where some of Hollywood's best are shown each weekend for 75 cents admission.

Barbara Rauch, a student worker in the Student Activities Office, said the film business is beneficial to students' entertainment and student organizations' treasures.

"The films are ordered from various companies that rent films to colleges and universities," Miss Rauch said. Among the companies are Films, Inc., Janus Films; and Film Center, Inc.

"The film titles, which are listed in the various catalogues distributed by the companies, are then offered for sponsorship by any recognized student organization on campus."

The race begins as representatives from various student organizations put in their bids as early as they can to get their choice of titles. Even though a popular film costs more, the better film usually draws more persons and money.

"Once a title is chosen, the organization pays a rental fee of $50 to $250 depending on the film and the film company," Miss Rauch said. "We (the Student Activities Office) provide the projector and the projectionist for the showing."

The organization sells tickets and the money usually "rolls in," according to Bruce Monaco, film representative for Alpha Epsilon Rho, the national honorary broadcasting fraternity.

"We sponsored two movies this year—"Zorba the Greek" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." Both yielded a profit of about $200," Monaco said.

Films generally are booked a quarter in advance. Approximately 50 campus organizations vie for the new titles each quarter.

Among titles to be shown this fall are "A Patch of Blue," "The Fox," "The Dirty Dozen," "The Sandpiper," and "Planet of the Apes."

Education lab fire results in total loss

Fire of unknown origin severely damaged the Outdoor Education Center building Thursday at the Outdoor Education laboratory operated by SIU near Little Grassy Lake.

William Price, coordinator of the University's Little Grassy facilities, said the large log structure was used as a focal point for grade school groups visiting the outdoor laboratory. It was located on Rocky Comfort Road, about 10 miles southeast of Carbondale.

The fire was discovered at 12:30 p.m. in a utility room which contained an electric hot water heater and electric junction boxes. Firemen from Carbondale and Giant City State Park responded and had the blaze under control at 3 p.m., Price said, however, early estimates indicated the building a total loss.

Workmen nearly had completed an addition to the original building, in use since 1965, which increased its size to approximately 40 x 80 feet. Only interior finishing remained to be done, he said.

The structure was made of large logs, on a native stone foundation.

Spouse cards now available to wives, husbands of students

Spouse cards, which entitle nonstudents married to students to a number of campus privileges enjoyed by SIU students, are available at SIU's Commuter, Married and Graduate Students Office.

First issued in the fall of 1967, the cards provide certain privileges at Morris Library and student prices for SIU Arena productions, the Celebrity Series, Southern Players productions, and many other campus events.

The privileges do not include Health Service benefits or student tickets to major sports activities.

The CMG office, headed by Mrs. Loretta Ott, assistant dean, is located at 615 S. Washington St., immediately north of the Washington Square complex.

Department bore

The Department of Geology at SIU has a "library" of more than 4,000 oil well bore samples from the Midwest.

Agricultural Economics Club displays essay contest trophy

The SIU Agricultural Economics Club will display for one year the winners trophy of the American Agricultural Economics Association (Student Section) essay contest held during the Association's annual meeting in Lexington, Ky.

Albert W. Gustafson, SIU senior agricultural industries student from Jerseyville, placed first in the contest with his essay on "Consumer Preference of Imitation Milk Beverages."

The SIU agricultural industries debate team, composed of Marlin Larson of Davis

Junction and Archie Duckworth of Mills Shoals, ranked second in the association debate contest, won by a team from South Dakota State University.

Seven SIU agricultural faculty members and a graduate student attended the association meetings in Lexington. They included W.E. Keeper, Dean of the School of Agriculture; Walter J. Wills, Herman M. Haag, and William Herr, professors of agricultural industries; Lyle Solverson, Donald Osburn and Gordon Langford, assistant professors; and Roger Ginder, a graduate student from Arenzville.

Solverson presented a research paper at the meeting. Wills said SIU will be host to the association's 1971 annual convention.

SIU's Kammlade gets Fulbright professorship

W. G. Kammlade, Jr., SIU associate professor of animal industries, has received a Fulbright Professorship to serve on the agriculture faculty at the University of Novi Sad, Yugoslavia, for several months during his current sabbatical leave at SIU.

He expects to leave Monday. Kammlade says he will work with Prof. Komchar, pro-rector of the University of Novi Sad, and will lecture at universities throughout Yugoslavia on beef cattle and sheep production.

He also will help plan economic and management developments for large state-owned farms in that country. He made a preliminary trip to Yugoslavia under the grant from August 24 until Sept. 12.

A little more than a year ago Kammlade received a Fulbright Award for a six-month guest professorship in animal science at the Institute of Animal Production and Genetics in the University of Göttingen, West Germany.

Kammlade has been on the SIU School of Agriculture faculty since 1954. His teaching and research specializations are in the school's animal science programs in beef cattle and sheep.

Cliburn will join the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m., Oct. 7, in the SIU Arena.

Cliburn and the orchestra, directed by the maestro, Walter Suskind, will give to the Southern Illinois area a program of top quality music at popular prices. Tickets will be $3.50 for chairs and $2 and $1 for bleacher seats. Any student, grade school, high school, or college, can obtain the $1 and $2 tickets for half price, according to W. D. The University of Wisconsin Singers, a corps of 32 performers of folk songs, show tunes, Dixieland jazz, country music, ballads, old standards and current pop, will be presented in a benefit performance for the new SIU Foundation's Music Award Fund at 8 p.m., Oct. 8, in Davis Auditorium. Tickets are $1.50. The group also will perform the following day at student convocations.

Langlais' organ concert will be at 8 p.m., Nov. 7, in Carbondale's First Methodist Church under the sponsorship of the SIU Department of Music. The following day Langlais will serve as clinician for an Organ Workshop at the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

The 6-foot-4 Cliburn, whose home is in Texas, made his debut in Carnegie Hall in 1948 as winner of the National Music Festival Award. His most important victory came in 1954 when he won the Edgar M. Leventritt Foundation Award. This annual competition gives the winner the privilege of playing in concert with the New York Philharmonic at Carnegie Hall and symphonies in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Denver, and Buffalo. In 1958 Cliburn was awarded first prize in the International Tchaikovsky Piano Competition in Moscow.

Teacher training class forms business to learn about 'work'

Even as small businesses go nowadays, the life of Deco-Plaques, Inc. was a very short one.

It was organized this summer by 13 SIU students and it was dissolved in less than two months. But the books showed a handsome return for stockholders, a complete sellout of its single production run, and a roster of thoroughly satisfied employees.

Deco-Plaques was the take-off model for an entirely new kind of teacher training approach in the field of industrial education.

The company's offices, production line, and marketing headquarters were actually the shops and classrooms of the SIU Department of Industrial Education.

The whole effort—called "Enterprise"—was a true-to-life exercise in business management and output.

The first such "Enterprise" class consisted of senior and graduate level students who teach, or plan to teach, "shop" in junior high school.

They dreamed up a business and a product, researched its market potential, organized and capitalized a company, designed and manufactured the product, then sold it on the open market.

They operated with a president, a board of directors, lesser executives, market analysts, production line workers, salesmen, even stockboys—all themselves.

Since most of them bought stock in their own company they were more than casually interested in the firm's success. They showed that from the start when they overruled their own instructor on a suggestion for the "Enterprise" project.

He wanted them to specialize in small motor repair work. They vetoed that suggestion after a weak report from their market analysts.

Instead, they produced basswood and poplar plaques bearing a symbolically charged photograph of SIU's Old Main building, an historic landmark destroyed by fire early in June.

Deco-Plaques, Inc. turned out 400 of the plaques and sold the entire run to the Women's Auxiliary of Doctor's Memorial Hospital in Carbondale.

The Auxiliary in turn is selling them at retail in the hospital's gift shop. Sales, reportedly, are brisk.

Capitalized at $144 ($1 per share of non-legal stocks), Deco-Plaques grossed approximately $650. Individual stockholders realized profits ranging from $11.20 to $45.

The company got nothing from its host; equipment was leased from SIU and material was purchased.

This fall another "Enterprise" class will be formed with a different cast of workers and a different product. They may come in a winner, like Deco-Plaques, or they may flop.

The idea? It's part of a sharply different concept of industrial education than the one familiar to generations of junior and senior high school youth, to whom such classes have been little different from the "manual training" shops of the lower grades.

The concept has been refined by Ronald Stadt, Industrial Education chairman, who preaches it vigorously and hopes SIU's graduates will pioneer it when they go out to teach.

"Traditional 'shop' courses and the like," says Stadt, "give youngsters almost no preparation for the real thing, the realities of productive society."

"The approach we're fostering (the entire program is called "Enterprise: Man and Technology") will, through actual experience, give students a much better idea of what to expect in the world of work. It will encourage them to 'plug in' to productive society."

"We aren't interested in taking future teachers and showing them how to make book-ends or door-knockers or how to read blueprints, although that is a part of it. We're concerned with revealing man's role in technology, showing the ways in which technology is applied in modern society."

"This one or similar programs are absolutely necessary to making education more relevant to today's world."

Except for the "president," Deco-Plaques personnel swapped roles throughout the summer class so as to get an understanding of how each position affected the enterprise as a whole.

At the course windup, the students had to develop another "Enterprise" idea suitable for a junior high class. They ranged from "Helldiver, Inc.," a firm that would produce fly-spoon fish lures, to "Branch Wood, Inc.," a candlestick holder outfit.

Stadt says there's a simple, fundamental difference between his "Enterprise: Man and Technology" curriculum and the more common, traditional approach to occupational education.

"One focuses on the world of play, the other on the world of work."

Scripts from 11 countries

Playwriting scripts on Mahatma Gandhi from countries all over the world are pouring into the Department of Theater at SIU in Carbondale for a competition in observance of the 100th birthday of Gandhi. Here Chinthain Kumararatnam, left, secretary of the Gandhi Centennial Committee at SIU, Clarence Hendershot, center, chairman of the committee, and Christian Moe, competition director, examine the entries. The winning entry, to be announced October 2, will be performed by the Southern Players spring quarter.

183 Gandhi plays sent to SIU writing contest

The Gandhi Centennial Playwriting competition sponsored by the SIU Department of Theater and the Gandhi Centennial Committee has attracted 183 scripts from 11 countries.

Christian H. Moe, competition director and professor of theater, said entries will be judged by a five-man committee, and the winner, to be awarded $4,500, will be announced on Oct. 2, the 100th anniversary of Gandhi's birth.

The winning play will be produced by Southern Players, student performing company of SIU's theater department. In April, 1970, under the direction of Herbert Marshall, British producer-director and India scholar, now visiting professorship of theater at SIU.

Besides Moe and Marshall, other judges are Dore Schary, stage and screen producer and playwright of Hollywood. Antsher Lobo of Bombay University in India, now visiting professor of musicology at SIU, and Wayne A. R. Leys, SIU professor of philosophy and Gandhi author.

The entries are from Australia, Austria, Canada, Ceylon, England, India, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, Poland, and the United States.

The competition is part of a general observance at SIU, Carbondale, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of the Indian leader. Other features of the program include the publication by the SIU Press of "Gandhi and America's Future," co-authored by Leys and P. S. S. Rama Rao, a native of India who holds a Ph. D. in philosophy from SIU.

Mowry writes plant article

James B. Mowry, SIU professor of plant industries, is author of a scientific article published in the current issue of Hort Science, a journal of the American Society for Horticultural Science.

"Differential Orchard Fireblight Susceptibility of Young Apple Stems" reports on Mowry's findings on research into the problems of fireblight with Red Jonathan apples. Mowry says the susceptibility of the young trees to fireblight disease varied significantly with the type of rootstock used in producing the trees. He also found fireblight problems more severe on non-flowering shoots when the trees bloomed profusely.

Mowry has a joint appointment with the SIU and the University of Illinois as superintendent of the Illinois Horticultural Experiment Station at SIU. The two institutions operate the stations co-operatively. His research work is mostly with tree fruits, especially apples and peaches.

IC's new microwave keeps a sharper eye on your needs

Illinois Central Railroad Takes a load off your mind

Our new microwave system ties together many recent IC innovations, each focused on quick, economical transport of people's needs.

Microwave accelerates everything that makes this railroad hum. It can handle 420 different jobs at once. It's the long, quick arm of our operating command, a thousand mile extension of our computer system. It gathers and disseminates data on shipments, flashes train orders, distributes locomotives and cars. It carries the impulses governing centralized train control, feeds our computers automatic car identification data, reports the findings of our hot box detectors.

Most of all, our new microwave system makes it economically feasible for us to do many things for our customers we could not otherwise afford. Which is one reason you can anticipate continued advances in IC service.

Old village smithy gives way to licensed horseshoe expert

By Charles Denight

Sam Young braced the horse's leg against his own, pulled another nail from the collection clenched between his teeth and drove it up and out through the side of the horse's hoof. With a snap of his wrist, Young bent the nail point towards the bottom of the hoof to hold the shoe securely.

Around the horse and her master hung the dry, dusty air of the stables, filled with a horde of flies flitting nowhere in particular. The only sounds were the clink of Young's hammer against the horse shoe and the continual swishing of the old mare's tail as she tried to keep the flies from her flanks.

Young and his wife, Kay, manage Crab Orchard Stables, situated on a dirt road that branches off old Route 13 east of Carbondale.

Young's fame in this area of the country comes from his skill in handling the feet of a horse.

"Lemme see. I'm 28 now and I started shoeing horses when I was 14 so I've been shoeing horses for 14 years. Had a heck of a long apprenticeship, seven years," he said with a smile. "Generally, an apprentice will be ready to take his licensing exam after three years. It wasn't because I was slow that I took so long. I was making so much money for my father that he didn't want to let me go."

William E. (Earl) Young, also a well-known horseshoer in this area, finally admitted that his son was ready to work on his own and Young went to Springfield to take his exam.

If anyone were asked to "think horse" in geographical terms, he would probably think of the great West—Texas or Oklahoma. Young said that these states certainly do have as many horses as Illinois, but although Texas has more horses than Illinois, it has what he considers are the worst horseshoers.

Illinois, Young contends, has the best horseshoers because of its licensing requirement. He said that there are stiff fines for shoeing a horse in Illinois without a license, and a man who passes the exam in Springfield knows his business.

"You talk about hard—they even judged us on the way we made our fires in the forge," said Young. "When I took the test," he continued, "there were 51 of us—two passed. Half didn't even finish the tests."

Young was one of the two who made the grade.

The examinees were given blanks (an unsized horseshoe) to fit to a horse. They were judged on how they sized the shoe for the particular horse and how they trimmed the feet. If the horse had any foot problems which required special sizing or trimming, then this had to be done properly. Young said that there were also written and oral tests that cut down a good portion of those taking the test.

Illinois has long been the only state that requires licensing. Why others haven't followed this example is something that bothers Young.

"You figure," said Young. "It will hurt a hundred-dollar plug to have a nail driven in wrong as much as it will a $10,000 horse, so why shouldn't all horseshoers be licensed?"

Since the Illinois license is the only one issued in the United States it holds great prestige, he explained. If a horseshoer in Tennessee or Kentucky or Missouri wants to build up a reputation, then he's going to get an Illinois license at some stage in his career, according to Young. Young said that there are stables in the West that won't even hire a man unless he holds an Illinois license.

Young obviously enjoyed talking about his trade. He stopped shoeing the mare, grabbed a soft drink and sat down. The flies settled back down on his large leather chaps.

Young, continuing his explanation, said, "Generally, horseshoers specialize. Some shoe only harness and thoroughbred horses. Those that shoe walkers also usually shoe gaited horses," said Young. "I specialize in corrective work."

Horses don't all run perfectly, he continued. Some strike one foot with the other as they are running or hit the front foot with the back hooves. Striking the front hooves together is termed brushing. A horse that "speedcuts" is striking the hocks on his back legs as he runs. Young hand-builds special shoes and trims the hoof in a special way to correct these problems.

Young handles any diseases of the feet that can be cured through corrective shoeing. This has meant meeting new problems everyday.

He told of one occasion when a horse had picked up a piece of rock and it had worked up into the foot. No one had been able to help the horse, whose foot became badly infected. Finally the entire hoof fell off and left nothing but the fleshy foot.

It was at this stage that Young was asked for help. He made a leather, shoe-like device for the horse and within a few days the horse was walking normally. The hoof eventually grew back.

Is horseshoeing necessary? Horses in the wild seem to survive without shoes.

Perhaps, but not for very long. The horse in the wild becomes tender-footed fairly early in life. This makes him easy game for the cougar or the wolves. His lifespan is much shorter than his domesticated brother's, Young explained.

Horseshoeing may seem to be an anachronism in this modern age but the practicing farrier is making some very modest profits. Young declined to discuss what kind of income he expects from his work but he said that one of his brethren, a member of the state examining board in Springfield, was making $75,000 to $120,000 a year.

The old village smithy has disappeared. His modern counterpart in Illinois is a very knowledgeable specialist who will be around as long as people use horses. As the horseshoer likes to say—no foot, no horse.

Historian John Allen dies after month-long hospital stay

John W. Allen, historian of Southern Illinois, died Aug. 29 at 81.

He had entered a hospital July 29, because of a heart attack suffered on his return from a summer trip to Europe.

Allen became most familiar to the public through his weekly newspaper column, "It Happened in Southern Illinois," which he wrote from 1952 until 1967 under a contract assignment at SIU. He completed two books, "Legends and Lore of Southern Illinois," published in 1963 and now in its third printing.

and "It Happened in Southern Illinois," published in 1968.

Born in a Hamilton County log cabin near Broughton, he attended and later taught at Hardscrabble rural school. He attended SIU at various times from 1908 to 1922.

Following a stint in the Marines during World War I, Allen visited Paris extensively and attended London University for a semester.

He returned to the SIU campus in 1942 to join the University faculty as curator of a museum housing handicrafts and pioneer implements. He retired in 1956, with the title emeritus.

At the time of his death, Allen was working on his autobiography.

Allen's accomplishments were widely recognized. He was president of the Illinois Historical Society, the Illinois Folklore Society and the Southern Illinois Handicraft Society.

SIU awarded him its Distinguished Service Award in 1964; the Southern Illinois Editorial Association named him Headliner of 1966; and McKendree College at Lebanon conferred its honorary doctor of laws degree upon him in 1964.

Summer enrollment up on both SIU campuses

Summer school enrollment on SIU's two campuses increased 8 per cent over the summer of 1968, according to SIU Registrar Robert A. McGrath.

Total 1969 summer enrollment of resident students on the campuses was 18,092 compared to 16,664 last year. The enrollment was 10,868 at Carbondale, up 3.6 per cent, and 7,224 at Edwardsville, up 16.1 per cent.

Enrollment in all student classifications on both campuses increased except in freshmen and sophomores at Carbondale which dropped 10.9 and 1.8 per cent, respectively.

The largest increase at Carbondale was in the senior class, which was up 20.6 per cent. At Edwardsville, large gains were registered in all classifications, seniors heading the list with a 35.4 per cent increase.

Graduate school enrollment increased 5.6 per cent at Carbondale and 9.5 per cent at Edwardsville.

SIU adviser in Nepal notes early industrial advancement

The kingdom of Nepal is beginning to industrialize despite problems, according to SIU faculty member Alice Rector, who has returned here after spending 21 months in the mountainous Asian country.

Mrs. Rector worked with an SIU team helping to develop the Nepal education system under contract with the U.S. Agency for International Development. She served as measurements and research adviser and in this capacity worked to develop a vocational aptitude test, which now is being used.

In Nepal, higher-caste persons avoid technical jobs, according to Mrs. Rector. She felt the aptitude test might convince some of them they could do well in technical fields important to their country.

Nepal can use much help in the field of education, said Mrs. Rector. "Its entire system is patterned after an early British system, with an all-important examination after the tenth grade. Much school work is based on memorization. Some alternatives could help the nation make the most of the trained people it is beginning to produce."

SIU students 'escape' to sunny island

By Whit Bush
Staff Writer

As they boarded the chartered Miami-bound bus, they looked very much like a beach and cabaret group.

Laughing and smiling easily, they introduced themselves, each silently relieved and safe in the knowledge that the rigors of final examinations were behind them. And that ahead, lay a week of tropical sun and relaxation in the Bahamas, far from the demands of academic endeavor.

Brought together by a desire to escape the ordinary, these 48 college students sought a more pleasurable and accommodating climate. And, 86 miles south by southeast of Miami, on Grand Bahama Island, they found it.

The trip was designed and coordinated by two SIU alumni, Bill Bodine and Bill Rhein, co-owners of the Rhein Travel Agency in Carbondale. The recent Bahamas tour package cost $133 per person, which included round-trip transportation to Miami, boat passage to Grand Bahama Island and six days at the Freeport Inn.

"We actively seek suggestions and advice from the students on what they think a trip should be composed of," Bodine said. "It would be ridiculous to operate any other way. They know what they want and we try to give it to them, if it economically possible."

"As former students ourselves," he said, "we are well aware how little money most students can afford for travel. And it's these people we have in mind when we begin building a tour package."

"Another feature that hasn't been mentioned yet," Rhein added, "is our 'Happy Time Hour.' In the Bahamas, the legal drinking age is 18, and from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. each day, the Freeport Inn served free cocktails to our guests."

"Students are adults and we recognize this," he said. "We don't send someone along to keep tabs on them. They have paid good money to go to a place to relax and enjoy themselves and we're not about to hire a policeman to check them in and out. And it works, no one has ever gotten into trouble."

Eleven-hundred-fifty miles and 25 hours later, the bus stopped on Pier 3 in Miami alongside the cruise ship, M/V Freeport. Launched in 1968, the 14,000-ton liner during the crossing proved to be an enjoyable experience for some, and not so for others. Little old lady tourists from Des Moines strode the decks on sturdy sea legs, while formerly boisterous college men languished at the rail.

The ship's casino provoked very little action, as it consisted entirely of slot machines. "And everyone knows," exclaimed one leggy, blonde SIU coed, "they are only for suckers." Except of course, three little old lady tourists from Des Moines who milked them for a couple of jackpots.

About an hour after sailing, a sweet British-accented, female voice over the public address system announced "fun and games in the Main Lounge."

There, Cruise Director Rex Richards held forth as master of ceremonies and was about to initiate a series of passenger games. And it became his small luck to attempt to involve the collegiates in them. Upon his invitation to join in, all declined. And when he persisted with caustic asides to the audience-at-large, the students began to harangue him.

Somehow, in the ensuing hassle, it dawned on Rex that they didn't want to play. Muttering, something about "Ship of Fools" and "Ugly Americans," in his most pronounced stage whisper, he compounded his previous mistake by trying to dance with one of the slot machine hustlers from Des Moines, who promptly kissed him. Apparently, things just weren't working out for Rex.

Miles Wuelner, 21, majoring in mathematics at the Edwardsville campus, said he was the ringleader of the "Harass Rex Richards Gang," during questioning by two of the ship's officers. Given the choice to cease and desist or accept quarters in the brig, Wuelner capitulated and made a temporary peace with the cruise director.

Reportedly, his parting remark to the officers was, "Actually, I think Rex is a cool head. Its just his singing and jokes I can't stand."

Richards, 35, of Liverpool, England, admitted to being somewhat short on show business talent, but stated stiffly, "I know I'm no Frankie Sinatra, but I do all right. This is the first time something like this has happened. It must be something in you Americans' blood."

Unconquered and persistent to the end, Rex at last sight was seen trying to keep a bingo game going with three players.

The M/V Freeport, capable of 10 knots an hour, takes a leisurely five hours on the 86-mile Miami-to-Freeport run.

The crossing was pleasant and provided everyone with an opportunity to rest and enjoy the Atlantic scenery.

And when the lights of Freeport came into view around midnight, a slightly intoxicated coed, perhaps best summed up the feelings of the group when she yelled into the wind, "Action City, here I come."
